

Docent Dispatch

April 2018

In This Issue

- Braddock Day Interpretation
- Calendar of Events
- Happy Hour

Braddock Day Interpretation

April 3—May 1

It's that time of year again where Braddock has come for a visit! This year, we will only be interpreting the first floor for Braddock's visit.

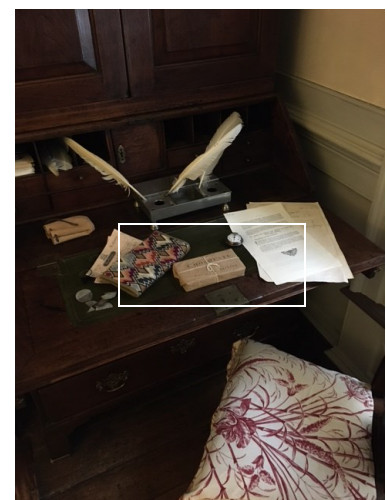

- I shifted things in the study and placed the very sharp metal piece (which is pole arm weaponry) on a stack of cloth in the corner to portray Carlyle ordering supplies for the troops. Make sure that no one picks it up as it's very sharp. I also put the broken green Windsor back in the lower passage.
- There is a stack of playing cards and a pipe on the mixing table in the parlor and some broken pottery under the table and a broom in the corner.
- The Braddock Letters are in the lower passage this year to make it easier for people to see and read them. And I put the back sword (usually in the closet in the master chamber) now in the study next to the table with the clock

Enjoy the new interpretation and let me know if you have any questions!

Best, Kerry

Pole weaponry in study.

Chocolate block in study.

CARLYLE HOUSE

Susan Hellman
Site Manager

Kerry Mitchell
Site Specialist

Allison Kelley
Curator of Education

Broken Windsor chair in lower passage.

Broken pottery in parlor.

Cards and pipe in parlor.